

Distinguished Lecture

Tuesday, December 8, 2015, 3:30pm

Stratospheric Exploration – The Ultimate Science Project

Alan Eustace (Senior VP of Knowledge, Google (ret.))

Atrium, Paul G. Allen Center for Computer Science & Engineering

This talk will discuss the technical challenges and solutions that enabled Alan Eustace, a 57 year old Google executive and computer scientist, and the StratEx team to set 3 world records, including the highest freefall skydive from 135,890 feet.

More information about Alan's jump may be viewed here:

www.nytimes.com/2014/10/25/science/alan-eustace-jumps-from-stratosphere-breaking-felix-baumgartners-world-record.html

www.nytimes.com/2014/10/27/science/for-world-record-alan-eustace-fought-atmosphere-and-equipment.html